-a word in edgewise; wise and otherwise

P. R. MILNES

The opinions expressed in this column are the personal views of the writer and do not necessarily reflect those of the management; in fact, many times they do not.—Editor.

THE MAY PRIMARY

While this is presidential election year it should not be forgotten that when we march to the polls next May at the primary there will be some local and State issues on which we will be called to express our opinion at the ballot box.

TO CHOOSE DELEGATES

One of the matters of interest within the confines of the Republican bailiwick will be the election of a set of delegates to the G. O. P. convention, but what is more important, whether the delegation we select will go instructed or uninstructed.

SEEKS TO CONTROL

I cannot yet bring myself to believe that Governor Frank Merriam is serious about the presidential nomination, yet his horde of officeholders is perniciously busy these days in an endeavor to drum up sentiment for him and making up a slate of Merriam delegates which we will be asked to vote for.

Although I have tried in many quarters to find out the men or man who have the governor's ear my quest has been in vain. No one seems to know, or if they do, they will not disclose the information. Conceding that there must be some people who are close to the throne, it is very apparent that they are bad advisors. Governor Merriam is neither presidential nor vice presidential timber, his home people are sadly aware of that fact and party members do not propose to be cozened or bludgeoned into voting

Bakers Object To Competition Outside Firms

Practically every member of the Richmond Bakers' Association was present at the meeting of the council last evening to back up a petition in which it was asked that the license on outside bakery wagons be increased from $15 a year to $120.

After much discussion the matter was referred to the license and ordinance committee, the city attorney, city manager and a committee from the bakers to see if an ordinance that would stand the test of the courts could be drawn.

Henry Heineman and Albert Hoefer, representing the bakers said that there were 34 outside wagons coming into this city, and unless something was done to curb their activity, the investments of the local bakeries would be seriously jeopardized. The speakers said that Pinole, South San Francisco, Long Beach and other cities had similar ordinances and they were able to enforce them.

Attorney Robert Collins, acting in place of City Attorney Tom Carlson, said that an ordinance fixing a low rate for local bakers and a high rate for outside ones, would not stand a court test. It was his opinion however that an ordinance might be worked out along other lines that would serve the same purpose.

The bakers claimed that their license fees and taxes on their property amounted to about $15,000 a year, as against the small amounts the outside firms are paying. They asserted they were entitled to some form of protection.

Bodies Of Six Recovered In Sea Disaster

ASTORIA, Ore., Jan. 13—UP—The turbulent sea of Cape Disappointment stubbornly held its dead tonight as the Coast Guard, searching from an airplane, from powerboats and from the beach, had recovered only six bodies of the 34 men who perished in the wreck of the freighter Iowa.

Only one body washed ashore today. Three had floated in Sunday a few hours after the States Line vessel slid under the waves until only her foremast was showing. Two were taken from the sea by a guard boat.

NO BODIES SEEN

Lieut. C. G. Bowman and Lieut. K. P. Maley piloted the Coast Guard plane over the wreckage-strewn sea but did not sight any bodies. The officers landed here, then returned to Port Angeles, Wash., continuing the search on the way.

Although the 80-mile wind that caught the Iowa as she cleared the Columbia river and drove her across Peacock Spit had moderated, the sea was still so rough that swells were breaking over the wreckage.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—UP—A new and sensational affidavit by Elizabeth Kelly, New York nurse was disclosed by Russell T. Tyler, attorney for Ann Cooper Hewitt in her $500,000 sterilization damage suit tonight.

The nurse reportedly made startling assertions regarding knowledge which she claims will aid Ann in her suit. Tyler said, however, that he doubted if he could use the affidavit.

Meanwhile it was announced that Tyler would confer tomorrow morning with District Attorney M. Brady on the question of issuing a criminal complaint charging Ann's mother, Mrs. Marion Cooper Hewitt and two doctors with mayhem.

Local AAA Cases Set For February

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13—UP—The ninth Circuit Court of Appeals today postponed until February 3, a hearing scheduled for Friday, January 21, on Pacific Coast AAA cases

The delay was granted to allow attorneys for both the government and the plaintiffs to study today's U. S. Supreme Court ruling on AAA processing taxes.

Dorothy Williams, assistant U. S. district attorney, said that from newspaper accounts of the decision she believed the government would not oppose granting of final injunctions against the taxes and refund of the tax money now impounded in Federal court.

MRS SMITH INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Mrs. J. P. Smith, well known Richmond woman, is in a local hospital suffering from severe injuries as the result of an automobile accident near Tulare on Saturday morning.

Mrs. Smith, who lives at 33 Nevada avenue, sustained three broken ribs and a possible fractured hip, in addition to probable internal injuries and cuts and bruises. She is being treated by Dr. W. S. Lucas.

Her husband, J. P. Smith, sustained only slight cuts and bruises in the crash.

According to reports reaching here, Mr. and Mrs. Smith were en route home from Whittier where they had been visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Pattison and Dave Pattison, brothers and sister-in-law of Mrs. Smith, when the accident occurred.

A light rain was falling as the Smiths were driving home. In some manner the car started to skid, turned around twice and then turned over.

The injured couple were taken to the Tulare hospital by passing motorists for first aid treatment.

On Sunday Mrs. Smith's brother, Dave Pattison, drove Mrs. Smith to the local hospital. Her husband will stay in Tulare until today when the damage to his machine will have been repaired.

Abandoned Auto Is Investigated

Richmond police last night discovered an automobile containing a box of pistol cartridges and a pair of men's gloves, apparently abandoned on the road near the Rich field oil plant.

A check with Oakland police revealed the car was owned by G. W Cortelyou, 820 Wawonah avenue who had told his wife he was going to Sacramento. Local police are investigating in an effort to learn what happened to the driver.

CASE TO BE CARRIED TO U.S. COURTS

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 13.—UP—Counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, at a secret conference outside of the city tonight, agreed to try to carry the fight for their client's life back up to the United States Supreme Court.

Working with the benefit of the advice of two Washington attorneys—experts on constitutional law—C. Lloyd Fisher, Frederick A. Pope and Egbert Rosecrans, the lawyers who defended Hauptmann, planned to try to get an entering wedge into the supreme tribunal through the Federal District Court.

WRIT TO BE ASKED

The strategy, it was understood, will be to go into Federal District Court either here or in Newark and apply for a writ. There are a dozen types of writs they could ask for, but they probably will stake all on a demand for a writ of habeas corpus

Stripped of its legal language, that means that the attorneys will ask for an order to "produce the body of Bruno Richard Hauptmann in court." In case their application is denied—and it probably will be because judges are reluctant to remove condemned men from the death house — the lawyers then could appeal to a higher Federal

Naval Parley Will Be Quit By Japanese

LONDON, Jan. 13—UP—It was announced officially tonight that Japan is withdrawing from the five-power naval limitation conference.

The Japanese delegation headed by burly Admiral Osagi Nagano, informed Great Britain that it will withdraw shortly, but announced that before quitting the conference Japan will make a full re-statement of her position.

It is understood that Admirals Nagano and Makuto Nagai, leaders of the Japanese delegation, will return to Tokyo by way of the United States. Other members are expected to go directly to Tokyo.

If the conference continues as a four-power negotiation among the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy, the Japanese naval attache to London, Captain Fujita, will keep in touch with developments without actually participating in the sessions, according to present plans.

Fish Plants Win Victory In C. C. Court

The State Fish and Game Commission got a sharp rap across its knuckles in the Superior court yesterday when Judge A. F. Bray denied issuance of an injunction asked by that body against three fish reduction plants in this county — the Point Edith Fisheries, the Ozol Packing Company and the Edible Fish Meal & Oils Company of this city.

The restricting order was sought on the ground that the three concerns were exceeding the allotment made them by the commission, the allotment, however, being only one-

Relief Workers Threaten Strike If Dole Is Cut

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13.—UP—Threats of a "dole strike" and hunger march of unemployed relief workers tonight brought Southern California's troubled relief situation to the verge of violence.

In a heated, two-hour hearing before the county relief committee, Louis Finesilver, head of an organization of unemployed relief clients said a hunger march would be staged January 28 and "bloodshed will result" unless an order to cut relief is rescinded.

Finesilver said more than 60,000 relief workers in this area are ready to walk off relief projects to join 4,000 unemployed relief clients who plan a hunger march if dole cuts are made.

"The police will not stand by and see us storm Los Angeles county relief headquarters," Finesilver warned. "And relief clients will not sit back quietly and face slow starvation. It is clear there will be plenty of trouble on January 28 unless some action is taken to help these poor people."

SUIT LOOMS TO RECOVER MONEY PAID

A suit to recover the sum of $1166.12 paid out for relief to Mrs. Mary Ivancich of Pinole may be the outgrowth of the examination of a judgment debtor in the Superior court yesterday afternoon.

While Mrs. Ivancich was on the stand in the role of an adverse witness it developed that although she has been drawing aid from the county by reason of representations to the Social Service department that she was wholly without funds for the support of herself and children, she had the sum of $1,812.40 in a local bank under a different name.

The matter has been referred to District Attorney Francis P. Healey to determine whether a suit can be successfully maintained for the recovery of the money paid to the woman.

The sensational disclosure came during supplementary proceedings in the case of Carl Graber against John Klobis in an endeavor to ascertain if the defendant against whom a $1200 judgment had been obtained some time ago had any tangible or concealed assets to meet the obligation.

Attorneys for the plaintiff called Mrs. Ivancich to the stand and at-

MACHINES DESTROYED

MARTINEZ, Jan. 13.—Sheriff John Miller today received from Mrs. Katherine Terry, justice of the peace at Pinole, an order for the destruction of slot machines seized by his deputies at establishments operated by M. Fernandez and N. F. Koon. The court imposed suspended sentences on the men on charges of slot machine possession.

Taxes Ordered Refunded By Court In New Deal Defeat

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—UP—The government lost $200,000,000 in processing tax revenue today when the Supreme Court ruled unanimously that the money be returned to taxpayers. The fate of $1,000,000,000 previously collected was left in doubt.

In another decision, also unanimous, the court threw out a test of the compulsory Bankhead cotton control act. This action merely delayed a decision on its constitutionality, however, as another test suit by Governor Eugene Talmadge of Georgia is pending, on which an opinion may be expected on or after January 20.

CASES INVOLVED

The cases involved were:

1.—A suit by eight Louisiana rice processers for an injunction to prevent the government from collecting rice processors for an injunction to prevent the government from collecting about $200,000 in processing taxes. The money had been placed in escrow pending decision, and the court ordered it returned to the processors. The ruling set a precedent for some 2,000 other cases involving a total of $200,000,000.

2.—An appeal by Lee Moor, Texas cotton planter, from a District Court decision in which the heavy Bankhead tax imposed on cotton outside the allotted quota. On the technicality that the district had the power to deny the injunction and that there was no reason for Supreme Court interference, the court dismissed the appeal.

Scratches Solve Murder Case

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 13—UP—The murder of Mrs. Stella Dake, 45, of Taft, today was reported near a solution with announcement by authorities that particles of human skin and hair had been found beneath the finger nails of the slain woman.

Sheriff Edward Champess declared discovery of the skin and hair indicated the woman had struggled violently with her assailant before she was killed by the blast of a .16 guage shotgun last Friday night.

The sheriff said there were scratches on the face and neck of M. W. Trivett, 60, at whose Fort City home the slaying occurred.

Trivett, according to Champess, declared he "could not remember or explain the scratches nor recall any details of the shooting."

SPEEDY VETS BONUS BILL ACTION SEEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—UP—A compromise bill authorizing immediate payment of the $2,491,000,000 soldiers bonus, backed by powerful Administration and veterans leaders, tonight was pushed toward early passage in the Senate.

Payment would be made in non-negotiable bonds valued at $1,836,213,950, which could be turned into cash by the veterans at their local postoffices, and in $87,786,050 of actual currency, under the terms of the Senate measure.

NO DELAY SEEN

The House passed a bill last week calling for immediate payment of the bonus but left it up to President Roosevelt to determine how the money would be raised. Action of the Senate leaders in approving the compromise indicated Administration officials had abandoned hopes of postponing action on this issue which has plagued Congress for 17 years under every President since Warren G. Harding.

Mr. Roosevelt's lieutenants on Capitol Hill are said to have advised him several days ago that it was highly unlikely that sufficient

GRID CLEANUP IS DEMANDED BY STANFORD

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 13—UP—Claiming that the public "which has made college football a big business, is getting tired of the smell connected with it," the Stanford Daily today editorially expressed belief that a clean-up of the gridiron set-up is in order.

"First," the college publication stated, "the hypocrisy of the situation must be stamped out. Next, there must be a strictly observed, a practical code that states in clear language the extent to which colleges and universities may ethically go in helping athletes."

The student newspaper lauded as a step in the right direction the recent move of the National Collegiate Athletic Association in passing a resolution favoring a code which forbids giving athletes any special concessions not open to non-athletes, but charged the resolution "unenforceable and impractical", because "the bulk of the association makes it pitifully ineffective."

The Daily pointed to the "next move" as one in which smaller groups, such as the various conferences, can "crack down" on their various institutions through bilateral agreements between college presidents.

Bears Worried By Slump; Will Play Tonight

BERKELEY, Jan. 13—UP—The University of California basketball squad, back home after a month's barnstorming tour of the East, middle west and southwest, settled down to a series of intensive workouts today in an effort to find out "what's wrong."

The Bears will meet California Aggies Tuesday night in a local preliminary" to the first of four conference games with Stanford, scheduled for Friday night at Palo Alto.

Coach Nibs Price's charges dropped their initial conference doubleheader to USC in Los Angeles last week-end, in which they appeared to be suffering from a scoring slump which dogged them through most of their barnstorming expedition.

It was reported unofficially here that Backer and Garibaldi will be transferred to the Sacramento Senators, now controlled by the St. Louis club.

Collins was recommended to the San Francisco organization by Frank "Lefty" O'Doul. He began his big league career with Philadelphia in 1929. In 1932 he went to Cincinnati, and last year was taken over by the Cardinals.

TULSA, Jan. 13.—UP—An inter-State crime compact for co-operation between States in a war on criminals appeared a definite possibility tonight with the promise of J. Edgar Hoover, superintendent of the bureau of investigation, Department of Justice, that his body would support State action.

RELIEF LOAD TO BE SHIFTED TO COUNTIES

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 13—Plans for disbanding the State Relief Administration, with direct relief being turned over to the counties, were announced in Sacramento today when Governor Merriam granted Frank Y. McLaughlin, WPA-SRA administrator, a leave of absence from SRA to devote full time to WPA.

Charles Schottland, San Francisco assistant to McLaughlin on SRA, will become acting State relief administrator.

OVERHEAD HIGH

At the same time it was revealed overhead totaled $900,000 a month up to December, with $2,000,000 a month being expended for relief. The overhead now has been reduced to $250,000 and is expected to be cut even further.

SRA eventually is to become only a supervising agency, the Governor said.

Ralph Jenney, chairman of the State Relief Administration, said transfer of unemployables to the counties probably would get under way about March 1. The present case load of SRA is about 75,000. It is expected to be cut to about 40,000 with transfer of others to PWA.

ADVANCE ORDERED

Jenney said it was agreed to advance an additional $2,000,000 of State funds to carry the State relief program through January. The original January allotment of $2,000,000 was declared insufficient because of the slow transfer of employables to WPA.

McLaughlin, Jenney and Schottland expected to confer with San Francisco bankers later regarding acceptance of the additional $2,000,000 State warrants.

SANTA FE AND PRODUCERS IN CAGE VICTORIES

The Santa Fe Super Chiefs added another victory to their string in the A Division of the Richmond City Basketball League last night by defeating Johnson Clothiers by a score of 40 to 28.

In the second game of the evening the Producers of the A Division nosed out the Galileo club by a score of 35 to 31.

CHIEFS IN COMEBACK

In the first game of the evening the Clothiers kept the Super Chiefs in check throughout the first half. When the rest period came the Johnson team was on top of an 18 to 17 score.

In the second half, however, the Super Chiefs pulled open the throttle and went to town to score a mere 23 points. Only ten points were allotted to the Johnson team in that half.

TULA IS HIGH MAN

Tula and J. Nelson did the heavy duty work for the Chiefs, with Tula getting 14 and Nelson scoring 10 points.

For the losers Alexander was high man with seven points and Casey trailed him with six.

PRODUCERS GIVEN BATTLE

In the second game the Producers had a hard time getting started. The Galileo Club took the floor determined to win a victory and up until the start of the second half, it appeared as if the Black Shirts would come out on top. They started like the well known whirlwind and scored 23 points to lead by a score of 23 to 12 at half time.

However, in the second half the Producers came back to tie up the score and then come through with a well-earned victory.

Kislingbury, with 11 points and Gillan with 10 were high scorers for the winners while P. Moitoza scored 10 points for the Galileo Club.

Fletcher Takes Paley To Task

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—UP—Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican National committee tonight called upon the two major broadcasting companies to be "as non-partisan and free from governmental domination as great news services," and to "give both sides an absolutely equal break."

He made public a letter sent to William Paley, president of CBS concerning Fletcher's request for free time to match President Roosevelt's message to Congress on the state of the nation.

Quoting Paley's statement that "appeals to the electorate should be intellectual and not based on emotion, passion or prejudice" Fletcher said this seemed "almost funny in the light of the impassioned appeal to class prejudice made by the President in his Congressional broadcast on January 3."

JOURNEY OF RUNAWAY BOYS IS SOON ENDED

A 12-year-old boy who gave his name as Bud Hollar was picked up on San Pablo avenue by a driver from whom he thumbed a ride Sunday, and left at the El Cerrito city hall for investigation.

The boy told the driver that he was on his way to Yosemite park, that his mother had died a week ago, that he had no father and that he was hungry. His story aroused the suspicions of the motorist who turned him over to Joe De Martini at City Hall.

De Martini called Officer H. A. Thulin, who upon investigation learned that the boy was Buddy Durlee of 357 Day street, San Francisco and that he was a fugitive from the family domicile.

His parents soon came to El Cerrito and took him back with them, where it is hoped he will live happily ever after.

SLUGGISH INTESTINAL ELIMINATION

When intestinal sluggishness has persisted for some time, immediate improvement in well-being follows as soon as this sympt is overcome. In order that the greatest health may be enjoyed, a f and complete intestinal cleansing is absolutely necessary. Althou a sluggish intestinal elimination is very common, fortunately, it m be entirely overcome in the great majority of cases. Even in the cases where the elimination has been slow and unsatisfactory fo considerable period of time, complete relief is often secured wit a month or two.

There are all grades and varieties of constipation and due to many variations which may occur, it is difficult to outline a definit of this symptom which will fit all cases. However, constipation m be defined as a delay in the emptying of waste from the large int tine. The elimination is not as complete as it should be, or is inf quent and irregular. In normal health, two or three movements sho occur each day and this desirable elimination is readily accomplish at a regular time without any thought being given to it. There is complete absence of anxiety about the matter and the colon clean itself thoroughly and in a satisfactory manner. When this norm routine is interfered with, the patient then develops associated sym toms which cause physical distress and is also likely to develop m tal anxiety. He feels that an important rule of health has not be attended to, and worry over the delay induces a mental discomfo

Constipation has been rightly called "the mother of disease" a certainly, we can not get very far away from the fact that as symptom, it is found to accompany almost any disease state. Al we must admit that one of the first rules of health is to keep t colon clean.

Constipation is notof itself a disease, but only a symptom. Ho ever, the importance of that symptom is not to be overlooked. should be regarded as a symptom which indicates some disturba of normal function and that disturbance may be caused by eit functional or organic disorders. When functional in origin, slugg elimination merely means that for some reason, the colon is una to do its work in a normal way. The cause is functional in a hi percentage of cases, and in such cases, it is comparatively easy re-establish normal functioning and to return the colon ot the st where it does its work completely and thoroughly.

Many other symptoms may be associated with constipation. T other symptoms commonly mentioned by the patient who is seeki relief, are; a feeling of fulness or distention; intestinal gas; chro tiredness; headache; mental depression; and perhaps a slight diz ness. The tongue is coated, the skin muddy in appearance, and t patient says he does not think as clearly as usual. In some cases t residue is hard and dry which may cause train when attempting relieve the colon of it. The appetite my be poor. There undoubted exits in the mind of the patient a strong suggestion that the syste is being poisoned by the retention of wastes which should have be gotten rid of, and this may cause considerable worry. As soon the colon is emptied in a thorough manner by one means or anothe even if that relief is only temporary, the patient notes that his sym toms rapidly leave, and also notes an increase in physical well-bein together with a return to a happier mental outlook.

Unquestionably, the patient who is constipated is a patient look ing for relief. He feels very strongly that action of some kind necessary and this feeling may cause him to take laxatives, purga tives or cathartics, or to the use of bulk increasers, intestinal lubri cants, or the enema. The patient wants relief and the many remedie offered at the present time have been devised to satisfy that want

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Anger and Digestion)

Question: J. L. T. inquires: "Does becoming very angry have any effect on digestion? Yesterday, I was very angry and when I ate dinner, I found my digestion very much disturbed."

Answer: It is well established that anger has a direct effect in slowing up digestion. Probably the effect of this emotion is brought about by a stimulation of the adrenal glands which stimulation causes an inhibition of the processes of digestion. Destructive emotions including anger or rage, are an important factor in the development of acute indigestion. The patient who is in a chronic state of suppressed anger often develops chronic digestive disturbances. It is advisable to omit the meal immediately following an emotional upset. Certainly, the patient who has undergone any violent emotional explosion is in no condition to digest food for several hours.

(Cook Pork Thoroughly)

Question: Harvey O. asks: "For what reason is one advised to cook all pork thoroughly?"

Answer: When pork has been infested with trichina spiralis, the human being eating that meat may develop trichinosis. By cooking all pork thoroughly, the danger of this parasitic infection is entirely avoided.

(Bronchitis or Asthma)

Question: Dee. G. wants to know: "What is bronchitis, also bronchial asthma? One doctor says I have the first, another doctor says the second."

Answer: Bronchitis refers to an inflammation of the bronchial tubes; bronchial asthma is marked by attacks of difficult breathing, with wheezing, cough, and a sense of constriction due to spasmodic contraction of the bronchi. The symptoms of bronchial asthma may closely resemble those of bronchitis. Only a very careful examination would disclose which is actually present in your case.

AGED COUPLE BILKED OUT OF LIFE SAVINGS

Marvin O'Malley, whose arrest at Placerville was chronicled in these columns Sunday morning seems to have very taking ways.

Last July he ingratiated himself into the confidence of Mrs. Marie L. Ogburn of this city with the result that the former councilwoman was $485 poorer. However, it appears that that deal was small change in comparison with the one he pulled in Placerville. Concerning the latter transaction, the Placerville Mountain Democrat, in its issue of January 9th, says:

"Mr. and Mrs. William Rust of Placerville have apparently been defrauded out of $6,000, the savings of most of their lifetime.

"Confirmation of the report that the aged former grocery clerk and present driver of the mail stage between Placerville and Cool was the victim of Marvin O'Malley in an alleged stock fraud, was given Wednesday morning by county authorities.

"At the same time they announced O'Malley 'has told most of the story, but hasn't told it quite straight yet' and that they expect other arrests and sensational developments in the case in the near future.

"O'Malley is charged with grand theft.

"The short, stocky and well-groomed 'bond salesman,' who on December 18 obtained $6,000 in negotiable securities from Mr. Rust, promising to exchange them for 'something better' was questioned closely by District Attorney Henry S. Lyon and Sheriff George Smith.

"He said," the district attorney stated after the questioning, 'that there is little for him to do except plead guilty. He told us the story pretty well, except that he hasn't told it straight yet and he hasn't given it to us as completely as we know it.'

"The authorities have learned that O'Malley made no effort to 'exchange' the securities as he promised Mr. Rust he would, but that instead, within two days after he left Placerville he began to sell the securities to a San Francisco brokerage house.

"That firm, William Cavalier & Company, had no idea until several days later, when O'Malley was identified as a suspicious character, that the securities had been stolen. Upon learning that O'Malley was under some suspicion, the brokerage firm co-operated with San Francisco police and El Dorado county officers in bringing about his arrest.

"It was not until O'Malley had disposed of all save one of the bonds that he was identified as a suspicious character, and an investigation was begun which led to his arrest as he disposed of the last $1,000 par value bond for approximately $885.

"San Francisco police have the brokerage firm's check for this bond, and the company has been asked not to re-sell the bond in the hope it may be returned to the Placerville couple."

Lot Posting Is Main Issue In Peterson Suit

MARTINEZ, Jan. 13.—Whether posting of 1100 separate lots was necessary to give legal notice for the sale was the point at issue today as the trial of an action filed by Louise M. Peterson against the Corporation of America and Bank of America, National Trust and Savings company, began before Superior Judge Thomas D. Johnston.

The suit, and also three other similar actions, ask to have the court set aside sale of property under deeds of trust. The market value of the property involved is $868,480, it is claimed.

Testifying today the plaintiff told the court each of the 1100 lots was not posted, and only about 100 notices were posted. The defense contends only posting of the parcels of land was required.

OLD DAYS OF S. F. DEPICTED IN NEW FILM

Miriam Hopkins and Edward G. Robinson are starred with Joel McCrea in enacting a triangle with a background of the "Barbary Coast" in a production of that name, which heads a two-feature program at the Fox theater tomorrow.

"Another Face" is the title of tomorrow's extra feature attraction.

Miss Hopkins is seen as Swan, a beautiful girl who is stranded in this city of gold-mad, love-hungry men and becomes queen of the Bella Donna, a notorious cafe run by Louis Chamalis, a man as ruthless as he is powerful.

Men risk their fortunes for a smiles as she presides over Chasmile as she presides over Chashe has grown hard and cold as the diamonds with which he has decked her. Hating all men, she suddenly meets a man from another world, Jim Carmichael, a young miner, who has made his strike. They fall in love and the Swan sees her life at the Bella Donna for what it is.

"Another Face" is something new in the public enemy business. Here is an outlaw whose vanity got the best of him and aided law and order to triumph once again. Plastic surgery plays its part to renovate the features of "Broken Nose Dawson" not to enable him to elude the law, but to aid him in becoming a movie star.

"Coronado" with Jack Haley, Johnny Downs, Betty Burgess, Andy Devine, Leon Errol and Eddie Duchin and his orchestra is the main screen attraction at the Fox theater today, heading the big bank night program.

Court Delays Decision Upon Mining Battle

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—UP—Delaying decision on the application of the Homestake Mining Company for a writ of supersedeas to prevent Private Investors, Inc., from gaining acess to the mining company's records, the District Court of Appeals today gave attorneys for both sides three days in which to submit authorities for their arguments.

Private Investors, owners of 100 shares of Homestake stock several months ago obtained a court order authorizing an examination of Homestake records, the investors concern claiming the value of the mining company property and equipment to be far greater than shown in the 1934 annual report.

Homestake secured a writ of prohibition which expires January 21. The writ of supersedeas is sought to continue the prohibition beyond that date and prevent inspection of records until the mining company's appeal from the original order granted Private Investors is decided.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—The week since the momentous AAA decision has been one of sphinx-like silence for the New Dealers. But they have not been idle.

Behind the scenes they have been busy charting a campaign against the Supreme Court.

There is one opinion on which the New Dealers are completely unanimous, from the President down — namely, that if they do not defeat the Supreme Court, the Supreme Court will defeat them.

The resultant strategy they have evolved, so far, takes the following lines:

1—Sit tight until the Court has aroused public opinion by throwing out more New Deal projects.

2—Later, move either to grant public powers to and increase the general welfare powers of Congress by amending the Constitution; or, on the other hand, to abridge the power of the Supreme Court. So far the latter looks easier.

3—Meanwhile, stage an educational campaign on the battles between Congress and the Court during the entire history of the United States.

Considerable work already has been done on No. 3. As a result, the public may hear something about the proposal of James Madison to enable over-ruling a veto of the Court by a three-fourths vote of Congress.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Also the public may hear much of the Dred Scott Decision, may enjoy the unique spectacle of a Democratic president hurling into the teeth of the Republican Party the words of that party's most famous president—Abraham Lincoln. Lincoln, commenting on the decision, said the Supreme Court had got the doctrine of popular sovereignty down "as thin as homeopathic soup that was made by boiling the shadow of a pigeon that had starved to death."

Other powerful arguments made by Lincoln in opposition to the Supreme Court have not escaped the boys who have been researching for the President, especially where Lincoln said. "It is not resistance, it is not factions, it is not even disrespectful to treat it (the decision) as not having yet established a settled doctrine for the country."

There is just one flaw in bringing up the Dred Scott case. This is the fact that Chief Justice Taney, who handed down the decision which helped precipitate the Civil War, was appointed by the Democratic President whom Roosevelt paid $50 to honor at the Jackson Day Dinner last week.

Roger Brooke Taney was a Maryland lawyer and slave-holder who first won fame by defending John Gooding, notorious Baltimore slave snatcher, caught smuggling 290 Africans up the Chesapeake. Later President Jackson made Taney Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

AAA SIMILARITY

Aside from this, the New Dealers have dug up some striking points of similarity and dissimilarity between the Supreme Court's decision in the Dred Scott case in 1857 and the AAA decision last week.

It was recalled that Dred Scott was a negro taken by his master from Missouri, a slave State, to Illinois, a free State, and to what is now Minnesota, where for four years he lived in territory that was free by the terms of the Missouri Compromise of 1820. Later he was taken back to Missouri, but he claimed that residence in a State and territory prohibiting slavery had made him a free man.

Scott sued for his freedom, won in the lower courts, was reversed in the Missouri Supreme Court, and finally appealed to the United States Supreme Court.

The entire country waited for the decision. Upon it hung the question of slavery's extension into the new Territories of the United States.

TANEY'S DECISION

By a 7 to 2 vote, the Supreme Court threw out the case. Chief Justice Taney stated: "The Negro race is regarded as so far inferior that it has no rights which the white man is bound to respect, and the Negro may justly and lawfully be reduced to slavery for his benefit." Horace Greeley urged that the Supreme Court's "usurpation" of power "must be met by revolt." Justice Black of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court called Taney "a mush toad spotted traitor to the Constitution."

Lincoln immediately made the Dred Scott case his campaign issue. And his speeches give the New Dealers some vitriolic ammunition.

By the Dred Scott decision the Court said, in effect, that Congress had no power under the Constitution to prohibit slavery in the Territories of the United States anywhere at any time.

The Court's AAA decision, in effect, ruled that Congress has no power to regulate agricultural production in the United States.

The Court generally was expected to throw out the processing taxes, but uphold the right of Congress to regulate agriculture. In the Dred Scott case, the Court was expected to remand Scott to servitude without agitating the country on the question of the right of Congress to regulate slavery.

Later, Lincoln announced that the Republicans would respect the Court's decree regarding Dred Scott but would reject the restriction on the power of Congress.

At that time the conservative forces of the country were in the South. The Court was looked upon as their champion. The Republican Party represented the radical forces of the North. The Supreme Court, packed by Jackson and overwhelmingly Democratic, was the guardian of Southern vested interest.

REVERSE SITUATION

At present, New Dealers point out, the situation is reversed.

Stronghold of conservatism and wealth today is the North and East. The Supreme Court, on which there are seven Republican appointees, is regarded as their chief protector. The regions hardest hit by the overthrow of the AAA are the cotton and tobacco areas of the South and the wheat and corn belts of the West.

Today the industrial North and East has profited by a high protective tariff, as the South prospered through the protection of slavery in the pre-Civil War days.

Privately, New Dealers go much further than this historical comparison. They point out that the AAA case alone may not be serious. But if the Court throws out the Wagner Labor Dispute Act, the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Social Security Bill, the Holding Corporation Act, the Guffey Coal Act, and the Securities and Stock Exchange Acts, the situation will be comparable to the pre-Civil War crisis.

Then, they point out, the class issue will be clearly drawn. Labor, the farmers, a good part of the general public will be pitted against the interests protected by the Supreme Court.

The sanctity of the Six Old Men or a class struggle as bitter as those in Europe may be the alternatives.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

One reason Herbert Hoover has not been in Washington since March, 1933, is that he would be obliged, according to protocol, to call upon the President at the White House. . . Cultivating roses, carnations, amaryllis and chrysanthemums has been the life work of J. W. Byrnes, Agriculture's 200-pound greenhouse chief. But his wife does not care much for flowers. "She tried putting out some plants once, and they didn't do so well". . . . A New York publisher is offering a $500 prize, open to CCC boys, for the best book manuscript telling the story of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 13—UP—Getting ahead as an actor is a matter of accent according to young Robert Cummings, who used three different sets of pronunciations to promote his career on stage and screen.

Now that he has a contract with Paramount, Cummings allows himself to lapse into his natural mid-western manner of speaking. But looking back across his life span of 25 years, Cummings attributes all his success to accents.

When he departed from his native Joplin, Mo., with the firm resolve to become an actor he paced the length of Broadway without so much as a suspicion of success. Even an entire year in the American Academy of Dramatic Arts failed to impress the managers with his talent.

The price of success is eternal vigilance, and Cummings certainly was possessed of that quality. It gave birth to a brainstorm, which ultimately shaped his whole career. Essentially simple, his idea was to become an Englishman, since in his wanderings around the theaters he had noticed there was a great demand for British actors.

Cummings thereupon extracted $400 from his hesitant parents back in Joplin and took steerage passage to Glasgow, Scotland. He stayed there a while, then traveled thru England on a motorbike. He would sit in hotel lobbies, observing the English, then go to his room and practice their mannerisms and speech in front of a mirror.

Thereafter he had his picture taken, changed his name to Blade Stanhope Conway, veddy veddy British, and wrote to the New York managers. In seven weeks time he was back in New York, complete with accent and mannerisms—to find a host of eager impresarios.

Cummings, of course, has long since explained everything, making a full confession. To his surprise, no one seemed angry about it. Now he is headed for the best role of his career in "Three Cheers For Love"—and he thanks the accent.

BRITISH TOLD DUCE WILL NOT QUIT LEAGUE

PARIS, Jan. 13—UP — Premier Benito Mussolini today sent personal assurance to Premier Pierre Laval that Italy will not attack Great Britain or quit the League of Nations, the United Press was informed.

Italian ambassador to France, Vittorio Cerutti, returning to Paris today after a week in Rome, brought confirmation of Il Duce's two-fold peace promise to Laval, which was conveyed to Count Charles De Chambrun, French ambassador at Rome, last week.

100 ARE KILLED

LONDON, Jan. 13 —UP— More than 100 Ethiopians were killed or wounded today and many were taken prisoner when the Italian army turned back an attack on the northern front, the Exchange Telegraph agency's correspondent with the Italian army reported.

The Italians were supported by artillery and machine gun barrages and intense aerial activity which forced the Ethiopians to retreat from several strategic mountain passes, the dispatch said.

Couriers arriving at Asmara, Eritrea, said that serious mutiny has broken out among Ethiopian troops commanded by Ras Mulu Getta.

Flood Danger In Valley Area Is Decreased

By UNITED PRESS

Slackened rainfall in Northern California Monday night lessened somewhat the danger of immediate flood conditions in the upper Sacramento valley, but promise of unsettled weather during the next few days brought new apprehension to communities near swollen rivers.

Major streams flowing down from the Sierra Nevadas receded slightly or maintained their high levels by late Monday, according to Weather Bureau reports.

Principal threat of floods continued to center near Colusa on the Sacramento river, where a depth of over 25 feet was recorded. At Knights Landing, near Woodland, the river rose to 28.8, as melting snows and rain water rushed down the gorges of the mountains and boiled into the muddy stream at the source near Mount Shasta.

Other rivers which rose to dangerous levels were the Feather river, Butte creek and Yuba river.

SILVER MOTH

By MILDRED SNOW GLEASON
(AUTHOR OF "CASTLE OF DOOM")

© 1935 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Kurt Hastings, secretly known as the Silver Moth, who makes a business of dangerous adventure, is persuaded by a stranger, Bruce Dalson, to take a mysterious packet of documents from Rome to Cairo. He then goes to his sister, Christine Masters, who has written begging him to come to her at Kom-el-Ahdar, near Cairo. He finds all of the Europeans there engaged in a big secret enterprise, connected in some way with the packet which he took to Cairo. One of the group is a double-crosser and has already caused three deaths. Kurt is hired to discover the identity of this person. An Italian, Tullio Coltani, disappears, and an attempt is made on the life of the beautiful and mysterious Sonia Andrews. Kurt finds Coltani, bound and gagged, in a packing case in an old deserted stable.

CHAPTER XXVIII

A MOMENT later, as Kurt stared at that inert body, he realized that the man was still breathing! This discovery roused him to immediate action.

He put his flashlight down on the floor, and pulled Coltani out of the case. Then, with his knife, he quickly cut the cords binding the man's arms and legs, and removed the gag.

Something like a low groan reached his ears, but Coltani still lay motionless. The flesh where the bonds had been tied was swollen and purple, and his face was a greenish white. Kurt felt his pulse, and then straightened up. The fellow must be removed at once.

Hoping no one would hear him, Kurt carefully nailed the cover of the case shut. When he had finished, he took a look outside. Then, returning, he lifted Coltani to his shoulders with some effort, and carried him to the kitchen window of his house.

There, the task was more difficult. After again opening the window, it took him some time to get the unconscious man through. At last inside, Kurt sat down on the floor, breathing hard for several minutes. Coltani was no lightweight.

When he had recovered his breath, Kurt hunted until he found a bottle of brandy. Forcing Coltani's mouth open he poured a small glassful down his throat.

Coltani shivered and, after a moment, opened his eyes.

"Water," he gasped hoarsely.

Kurt gave him as much water as he thought would be good for him, and carried him into the bedroom, where he laid him on the bed. Coltani groaned. Kurt gave him another sip of brandy and began to massage his legs and arms.

After half an hour, Coltani was able to move with difficulty.

"HOW long have I been in that blasted box?" he asked, beginning to remember what had happened.

"Don't know exactly," said Kurt. "Thirty-six hours, probably. Here, have another drink."

"If you hadn't found me, I'd have died, and nobody would have known."

"Oh, eventually there would have been a smell," Kurt remarked cheerfully.

Coltani grimaced. "How did it happen?"

"That," said Kurt, "was what I was hoping you'd be able to tell me." He went on to explain his new status in the group at Kom-el-Ahdar, and urged Coltani to tell all he knew.

"I don't know a thing. I went to bed and, when I woke up, I was in a box, tied and gagged. I felt as though I'd been on a ten-days bender, but oh, my lord, that was nothing to what I felt later . . . thirst and pain. . . ." He covered his face with his hands.

"Steady, old man," Kurt said gently. "Don't think about it. The point now is, who would have a reason for putting you out of the way?"

"I don't know."

"Think hard."

"I'm one of the gang, of course," Coltani groaned. "They all seem to be going west, one way or another."

"Yes, but from apparently natural causes," Kurt pointed out. "Your case is different—as though our villain had become desperate. Think — you hadn't discovered something recently that might have been dangerous knowledge?"

"Dangerous?" Coltani echoed feebly. "Well, I don't know that it was that. I didn't even think it was important."

"What?" Kurt's voice was sharp.

"Oh, just that I found out that, when Pierre was supposed to be in Alex last month, he'd really taken a little holiday on the quiet to Europe."

KURT choked back an exclamation. So LeMartin had gone to Europe last month when he was supposed to be in Alexandria! Here, at last, was something tangible.

"When did he get back?" Kurt asked, trying to keep his voice calm.

"I don't know exactly. A few days before you arrived. But Pierre is a good sort. He might kill a man, but not do what was done to me! Hastings, you can't realize the torture I've been through!"

"Perhaps not," Kurt said quietly. "Don't get excited. I'm not accusing LeMartin."

Coltani subsided, and lay with his eyes closed. Kurt paced up and down, frowning. Finally, he sat down on the edge of the bed.

"Look here," he said slowly. "I've told you that I'm trying to get to the bottom of this mess. Will you help me?"

"I'd do anything to get even with the cuss who put me in that box. I'd like to pick him to pieces, inch by inch!"

"Right. Then listen. I don't want anyone to know you've been found. I have an idea. Last year I understand, the whole lot of you went on a camping trip into the desert over Christmas. I'm going to plan the same sort of a trip this year, and spring you on the crowd when we get there. It only means keeping you hidden for three days. And a few hours uncomfortable drive. Are you willing?"

"I don't quite see the point, Hastings, but I'm willing enough if you think it will do any good."

"I hope," said Kurt, "to frighten the guilty party into giving himself away."

"Do you know who it is?"

"I am beginning to have a pretty good idea."

COLTANI stared at Kurt as though trying to read his thoughts.

"That desert trip is going to be dangerous, Hastings," he said finally.

Kurt lighted a cigarette and looked down at Coltani with a faint, sarcastic smile on his lips.

"It seems to me that Kom-el-Ahdar is about as dangerous as any place," he murmured. "Now, do you think you can stay hidden here if I bring you food?"

Coltani nodded. "That will be easy enough, I guess, and as for food, the kitchen is full of tinned stuff."

"Right. Then I'll be off, but remember, it is absolutely essential that you remain hidden, so be careful."

"Don't worry, I'll be careful enough," Coltani grunted.

"I think you will," Kurt agreed grimly.

He left the house quickly. The first light of dawn was in the sky and, as he neared home, he was wondering grimly how many more dawns he would see. Then he laughed suddenly. The old danger thrill was surging through him, and the first trick of the game was his!

SHIP LEAVES TO BUILD AIR ROUTE HOTELS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—UP—Pan American Airway's second construction expedition to the way stations of its trans-Pacific air mail route — Midway, Wake and Guam—began tonight with departure of the 6,000-ton freighter S. S. North Haven.

Aboard the North Haven was a crew of 100, gangs of which will be dropped off at each of the tiny outcroppings in the Pacific to construct modern hotels for accommodation of China Clipper and Philippine Clipper passengers, en route to the Orient from the United States.

During the next four months, the 100 men will be engaged in building these 24-room hostelries and 90 foot beacon towers, each equipped with a powerful navigating light.

Besides workers, approximately 2,000 tons of cargo, including building materials and supplies will be unloaded at each of the lonely air bases, which, before the coming of Pan American employees, virtually were uninhabited.

At Wake island, a concrete dock will be built and a 20-ton derrick installed to lift heavy cargo from the North Haven. To transport building material and other supplies across the island to the air-base, 2,000 feet of narrow-guage railroad will be constructed and a five-ton locomotive used to pull flat cars.

The voyage will be the second for the North Haven in connection with air-mapping the Pacific and laying groundwork for regular passenger service between the two continents. The first expedition was completed shortly before Pan-American Airways had completed final plans for sending its huge four-motored airplanes from Alameda, Cal., to Manila, P. I., and back.

Fish Plants Win Victory In C. C. Court

half of that given to other similar enterprises.

The battle between the Fish and Game Commission and the county plants has become a cause celebre or rather causes eelebre, for the calendars of the courts not alone here but in San Francisco are becoming cluttered up with cases in an effort to restrict the scope of the operations of the three companies.

The first court tilt came when the trio of plants appealed to the Superior court to restrain interference with their operations by the fish commission.

Judge Thomas D. Johnston issued a restraining order pendente lite and the commission immediately appeared in the Supreme Court and obtained a writ of prohibition which tied the hands of the jurist, the writ commanding him to resist from further proceedings or to show cause before the court. Last week the case was argued before the high tribunal and is now under advisement.

In the meantime the fish commission went into the court of Justice of the Peace John Moore and caused warrants of arrest to be issued for the owners of the three plants under a section of the penal code, which, it was claimed, was being violated.

The fish commisison also brought suits in-abatement against the reduction plants and asked for injunctions prohibiting them from catching sardines in excess of the allotment made them and these on motion were yesterday transferred to San Francisco.

When the case came up yesterday it developed that the reduction concerns are now taking sardines at the same ratio as other plants, instead of halt that amount. It has been the contention of the plants that they are entitled to catch as many fish as other plants which are allowed to take 4,200 tons and that the commission had no right to cut their allowance in half.

What the final outcome of the war will be cannot be foretold but it is very apparent that the county plants will have caught and reduced the full quota before a definite determination of the controversy is had.

The law firm of Tinning and DeLap is representing the reduction plants and the attorney general's office the fish commission.

Science Finds That Nerve Operations Often Allay Physical Distress

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

THE first official reports are coming in from the recent annual meeting of the American Medical Association at Atlantic City. The speakers for these annual meetings are chosen for their activity in research in various fields and for their ability to express their conclusions according to personal opinion and as representing the group voice of their fellow workers. Hence, the profession accepts their pronouncements as a report of the latest findings in modern medical science.

DR. CHRISMAN

Probably no topic was of greater interest than the one discussed by Dr. Alfred W. Adson, neuro-surgeon of Rochester, Minn., when he told of the new style of surgery dealing with the various types of nervous disturbances. The forms of disease or physical distress arising in the nervous system that can be relieved by surgery range from cold feet to discolored eyeballs. One condition, called Raynaud's disease, is characterized by excessive chilling of the extremities. The sensitiveness to cold is abnormal and acutely painful. The hands and feet are blue, and the breath is repressed as in any constriction of the blood vessels.

Muscular Weakness

A disease of the skin due to nerve trouble produces a thickened and stiffened epidermis that has peculiar patches on it. This condition is accompanied by a muscular weakness, involving especially the opening of the mouth or sticking out of the tongue. Many persons who get nervously tired find it difficult to maintain a conversation, especially to complete a description of an event involving a consecutive train of thought. A very annoying condition especially afflicting office workers or seamstresses is excessive sweating of the hands and, usually, the feet. This condition is called hyperhydrosis and is sometimes so severe as to interfere with employment.

A type of gangrene, with a long and difficult name, arises from the forming of clots in the blood vessels, which become the seat of inflammation and sometimes cause the loss of an arm or leg. An affection of the retina of the eye, involving the hardening and discoloration of the retinal membranes proves to be of nervous origin. High blood pressure, of what we call the essential type, is also traced to the same or similar source.

In a number of diseases in which the bladder and intestines are affected, a disorder of their functions is produced by muscular spasms and these are caused by lack of co-operation in the nerve centers.

Of Nervous Origin

Here is what Dr. Adson says of the conditions that have been mentioned: "All of these conditions have been successfully treated by operations on the sympathetic nervous system. Operations which, while extensive, are no more dangerous than an operation for simple appendicitis. In each operation, one or more of the sympathetic nerves are cut. Which ones, depends upon the particular disease and the location of the diseased condition."

These experiments in neurosurgery are of the greatest importance to both the patient and the doctor, since no class of diseases is more perplexing and discouraging to either of these folks than those of nervous origin. Years ago, I had a woman patient who was subject to violent headaches. Invariably the headache brought on a fit of ill temper that almost drove her family from home. Her husband was continuously begging me to contrive some sort of operation that would put a stop to these abominable spells.

If we knew where folks kept their tempers, I told him, we would find the surgeries overworked. It has been proved true in countless cases that properly placed operative measures have cured the most baffling cases of mental misbehavior. We shall hope for much from this form of medical science.

Profiles For Today

Australia's Premier Is A Plain Man

By TALBOT LAKE

OFFICIALLY, the Right Honorable Joseph Aloysius Lyons is known as the Prime Minister and Treasurer of the Commonwealth of Australia. He prefers to be called Joe.

That, he said during his recent visit to the United States, is how he is greeted at home. Though he is regarded as a person without swank or pretension, he does carry the dignity of a man who has done much, has much to do and has entire confidence in his own ability to do it.

Arriving in the United States en route to his home "down under," after being present with Mrs. Lyons at the King's Jubilee celebration in England, the Right Honorable Joseph and his plump, handsome, young-looking wife, were overnight guests at the White House. A state dinner was given in their honor at the Executive Mansion as well. The visit may result in spurring a reciprocal trade agreement between Australia and the United States.

This was the first time he had ever visited the United States. Born in Tasmania 56 years ago, he knew what it was like to earn his own living early. He became a school teacher and followed that career for a while, but he believed there was a greater future for him in practical politics. Hence, he gave up teaching and since that time he has been identified with Australia's Federal Labor party.

When debt and depression brought on Australia's critical moment, he was a minor member of a Labor Cabinet. Members of his party began to swing toward the expedient of a wild inflationary program. Joe Lyons stepped out and up.

He rallied conservatives into a United Australia party. He placed himself at the head of it, much as J. Ramsay MacDonald took control of a National Cabinet in England. Then he set himself to finding a way out of the depression. Public salaries were reduced, pensions were cut. Every possible economy was practiced. The last fiscal report showed that Australia has a surplus of 700,000 pounds—about $3,000,000.

Stocky, of medium height and with a shock of gray hair, Joe Lyons has a pleasant smile. He and Mrs. Lyons did not bring their children along. Presumably that would have been inconvenient. There are eleven of them.

Guide to Charm

Deodorants Help You to Keep Smart

By JACQUELINE HUNT

EARLY in their 'teens girls should learn the value of deodorants — the easy-to-use powders and soaps and the antiperspirants — for no girl can be truly sweet, charming and well groomed if she neglects such details.

A daily warm, soapy bath followed by a cool or cold shower and a rub down with scented toilet water will go a long way toward keeping perspiration in check by normalizing the circulation. But during adolescence, when glands are over-active, perspiration cannot always be controlled by such simple measures. In these cases the use of an antiperspirant or a deodorizing agent is also needed.

And girls, while we are discussing such unpleasant but necessary subjects, let me suggest more plain, old-fashioned neatness. Many of you who are so careful to take your daily baths, shampoo your topknots as soon as they lose their luster and take the best of care of your skins are careless about little things.

MISS HUNT

You forget to shorten the slip that shows, you allow shoulder straps to become soiled, dresses rumpled, hems to become loosened and you forget to brush the loose powder from your hairline or from the shoulders of a dark dress. It seldom takes more than five minutes to correct these little details, and once you have the habit of neatness, you are ready for the more advanced lessons of beauty.

Well balanced meals, eight to nine hours of sleep in cool, well ventilated rooms, outdoor exercise and daily natural elimination will keep young girls healthy and encourage a fair complexion that is free from blemishes.

If you should develop a light case of acne, take steps to clear it up at once. Get a good acne ointment and an antiseptic, protective lotion that will heal and dry up the ugly pimples and blackheads. Let your doctor suggest a diet and additional treatment if they are needed, and follow his directions faithfully until every blemish has disappeared.

Scrupulous cleansing twice a day with a small complexion brush and a pure bland soap will do more than anything else to keep your skin fine textured and to clear up blackheads and oiliness before they have a chance to develop into acne.

Seldom are the stronger cosmetics needed for a youthful skin. Occasionally we find a skin that needs a bracing, but not too strong, astringent; or a thin, dry skin that needs a rich lubricating cream. These cases are exceptions.

A time-table of beauty events for brides who want to be glamorous is contained in the leaflet. "Beauty For Spring Brides." Just send a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "I need some advice on manicures. My hands are rather plump and my fingers short and stubby. Will long, pointed nails make my fingers look more slender? What is the first step in a good manicure? —Mrs. C. Z."

Long, pointed nails will make your short, stubby fingers more noticeable. Try filing them in an almond shape, close at the sides and with a rounded point at the longest part. Pinch and mold the flesh on each side of the nails. You can actually train your fingers into more slender lines by this method. When you apply your polish, do not cover the entire nail, but keep the polish in about a sixteenth of an inch from the sides. This will give an illusion of shapeliness. The first step of a good manicure is the removal of the old polish. Shaping the nails and then using a cuticle remover or softener are the next steps.

QUESTION: "Every summer my skin becomes dry and fine lines appear around and between my eyes. These usually disappear and my skin improves when fall comes, but I've noticed that the lines are becoming deeper and do not disappear so readily as they used to. Is there some way that I can remove them?—Worried."

The lines should have been treated when they first appeared. However, you can do much to prevent their reappearance this summer by using a good softening cream or muscle oil and wearing colored glasses when you are in the bright sun. Apply the cream after cleansing nightly and smooth the lines with gentle massage strokes.

A Smart Figured Coat Tops Off Your Frocks

By IRENE VAIL

New York—To possess a smart figured coat is to be in the know. Such a coat, in the appropriate length and cut, is just the thing to top any number of frocks. It is not intended that it match the frock, but offer a bold contrast to it.

Smart shops and custom-made establishments discourse at great length on the success of the printed suit. It is fresher looking than the printed dress, and answers the same purpose. It is usually worn with a lingerie blouse, embroidered organdie being a favorite, though it may be worn with others.

There are some extremely crisp, good looking taffeta suits—plaids, pin checks, striped or dotted, as well as any quantity of printed crepes. They are not all in floral motifs, by any means. It's a big year for dots—small dots, medium dots and large. This reminds me to mention that the polka-dotted bathing suit is one of the best of the year. White dots, not too large, on dark grounds are smartest. Besides the omnipresent white or navy, there is also white on Dubonnet, which is really seaworthy.

There are women who wear flowers well and some who should never wear them at all, unless in boutonniere form. Even tight little clusters worn in the buttonhole are not always a fortunate choice, since they are inclined to accent width.

With varieties about, there must be some arrangement, possible to all women who have occasion to wear flowers. They are often worn centered just below the chin. They are worn at the waistline, usually at back, this being an effective placement for evening, especially when the back decolletage calls for a happy ending. The shoulder is avoided. When flowers are worn offside they appear at the side opening above the shoulder, or, in other words, on the neckline. Necklines are either soft, draped, or inclined to be severely tailored, and it's not the occasion that controls their selection.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "When I plan dinner for seven and ask my friends to come at seven, they have a way of straggling in anywhere from seven to seven-fifteen. Meanwhile the potatoes get water-soaked and the meat dries out. Next time, I'm seriously thinking of asking them to get here a half hour earlier, at six-thirty, to have them here on time.—Mrs. G. H."

ANSWER: The measure which you desperately propose trying happens to be precisely the correct form. It is customary to receive, visit and serve cocktails until about half an hour after the time mentioned in the invitations to one's guests.

QUESTION: "Which form is correct, 'thanks,' 'thank you,' or 'I thank you'?—V. D."

ANSWER: "Thank you" is the correct phrase. "I thank you" is also correct, but unpopular for common usage because pompous sounding.

QUESTION: "At what point in the marriage ceremony does the best man hand the ring to the groom?—Best Man."

ANSWER: Precisely at the point where it is required in the ceremony. That ought to be easy to remember. Just make sure that you remember where the ring is.

Simple Menu Bride's Best Early Effort

By JUDITH WILSON

HOW wonderful it would be if happy brides could be transformed into competent cooks and housewives the moment the wedding journey is over! Back in your spotless kitchen among your shiny new pots and pans with a gleaming refrigerator and efficient new range, cooking seems so simple that your first impulse is to invite everyone you know to help you celebrate.

But wait a while. You must first be able to place before your new husband a well balanced and attractive meal, with every item on your menu perfectly cooked, deliciously seasoned and garnished to appeal to the eye as well as the taste. When you have learned how to plan so that the cold dishes on your menu are cold and the hot ones are sizzling and ready at precisely the right moment, you can begin to plan for guests.

DINNERS FOR TWO
Honeydew Crescents
Small Steaks with Sauted Mushrooms
Creamed New Potatoes
Garden Salad
Strawberry Shortcake
Iced Coffee

Chilled Tomato Juice
Baked Chicken in Cream Gravy
Buttered Asparagus
Browned Potatoes
Hot Rolls Relishes
Fresh Fruit Cheese
Black Coffee

Keep your early meals simple with only two or three courses and try to improve on a few recipes rather than trying out a lot of them without success. One of the first things you should learn is how to broil a perfect steak, brown and crusty on the outside, tender and juicy inside. Learn to prepare the cheaper cuts of meat, too, in succulent pot roasts, stews and meat pies that men adore.

Once you have learned to cook meat well, you can serve an attractive meal. First courses are always easy. Even the most inexperienced bride can put a can of tomato juice into the refrigerator to chill.

Serve tomato juice in small but pretty glasses that have been set in the refrigerator for a few minutes before you use them. Garnish with a thin slice of lemon and a tiny sprig of parsley, or sprinkle with chopped parsley and put a lemon wedge on the side. When you serve melon, put a wedge of lemon or lime on the plate.

Cooking potatoes is fairly simple. Most vegetables are also easy to prepare if you will remember to put them into rapidly boiling, salted water and cook them only until tender. By cooking your vegetables quickly you will find that most of their bright, natural colors are preserved and the flavor is much improved. Drain at once and dress simply with melted butter and additional seasonings if needed. When you become more skilled, you may try more complicated sauces occasionally, but remember that most people prefer simple flavors.

Your early salads should be simple combinations of garden greens attractively arranged in a large bowl, from which the guests help themselves. Wash your greens thoroughly and put into a cheesecloth bag to chill and crisp. Tomatoes cut into thin wedges, slices of cucumber and tiny scallions may be added.

MODERN WOMEN

It's All Right, These Days, to Cross the Groom's Palm With Silver

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

MOTHERS of sons who marry girls with money see no reason to deplore the fact. Mothers of girls who make rich marriages seldom bemoan the fact. So why isn't it just plain horse sense for the mother of penniless girls, no matter how lovely, to admit that they are greatly handicapped in the matrimonial race? They should face the fact that something must be done to offset such a handicap. The Latins have a word for it—the dot. Dowry or nestegg to us.

MRS. MARTIN

"My dear Mrs. Martin: Have you noticed, I wonder, that marriageable young men seem to show no interest in poor girls? They hover around girls with monied parents and don't seem to give a thought to the girls who have nothing but themselves to give? It may be a condition peculiar only to the town in which we live, but it is most pronounced here in ——. I am the mother of two beautiful girls, one twenty and the other nearly eighteen, but are they asked around, or taken out by the town's best boys? They are not! The less attractive but better-off girls have the pick of the crop. What's the matter? Don't modern men appreciate beauty and seek out girls that are both beautiful and well brought up?

"Discouraged Mother."

I am sure they admire beauty as much as ever, but the upkeep is too high, or so these hardheaded young men reason. Beauty is not enough. Not any more. A girl must contribute something tangible if she hopes for a good marriage. The Latin system of providing a dot, or a nestegg, for the daughter is gradually being adopted in this country, although there is no talk of dot or no mention of any specified sum.

Parents Provide

Well-to-do parents are growing accustomed to the idea that they are expected to provide some sort of leg-up for their son-in-law. They either expect to give him a start in his wife's father's business, or to see to it that the brunt of the initial expense of founding a home is taken off the inadequate shoulders of the young man.

Provided a boy's interest and affections are not already centered on a penniless girl, one can hardly blame him for seeking a wife among the girls whose fathers stand willing to do something more than receive him with open arms.

There is no longer any particular prejudice against the working wife, or no stigma attached to a poor man marrying into a family reeking with money. It is not called fortune hunting when a canny young man of personable appearance browses around the girls who, when the strains of the wedding march are ended are prepared to have the hand of the bridegroom crossed with silver.

One no longer jumps to the conclusion that because the girl with money marries it is solely because of her money. It has been demonstrated that love and gold make a most satisfactory mixture if the proportions are carefully blended.

Admitting that it is hard on the mother of two lovely daughters to find them a bit of drug on the matrimonial market, I think any mother would admit that she would not want her girls to marry penniless men. This rather argues that, were she the mother of men instead, she would prefer to have her boys marry among the monied set.

Whatever else one may see of the age in which we live, it is not a hypocritical one. No one is afraid to confess a preference for falling in love among the rich rather than the poor.

Mutual Advantage

Only a fool could ignore the fact that the high cost of living is not more than the high cost of loving. Such being the case, young folks must have financial assistance to the altar.

In order to marry at all, the average young man must turn to someone for help, and it seems natural to him that that someone should be the girl who is to carve his future with him. It is to their mutual advantage. Assuming that the man is honest and not lazy, according to my way of thinking there is nothing against him if he expects at least as much as he has to offer.

Love has survived poverty, but it has also flown out of the window a sufficient number of times still to be much of a toss-up.

Unless you show a willingness or make an effort to reinforce your daughters' position in the matrimonial line-up, you need not be surprised to find the less lovely girls who operate under the 50-50 code beating them to the altar.

You and Your Child

Caressing Is Much Like Mauling

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

SEVERAL times a week grandfather makes a trolley trip to see two-year-old Arthur, his first and only grandchild. He is fond of the little fellow, but the child is indifferent to him. As a result, though grandfather always looks forward to seeing Arthur, he invariably is disappointed after leaving the child.

MRS. GOWARD

For grandfather would like to be able to take the child on his lap and keep him there for a while to play with. One would think he would learn from experience to leave the child alone. He should have gleaned by now that the child prefers to go his own way. But no. Grandfather is quite as set as Arthur.

Arthur's mother feels sorry for the old gentleman. So when he says, "Come here, Arthur," mother generally lifts the boy and carries him over to granddad. While this may prevent the youngster from running away to hide, it does not help any as far as grandfather is concerned. From the minute Arthur is handed over to grandfather, he struggles to get free from his embrace.

Grandfather expects loving consideration from Arthur because he himself loves him. Meantime grandfather must do everything possible to make the little chap love him in return.

Young children do not like to be pawed, caressed, mauled and held against their will. They're like Bo-Peep's sheep: if you leave them alone, they will come home. And when they come, be ready to receive them courteously. This, by the way, is the secret of successful relations with children. Mother or dad could tactfully point it out to grandfather. He might try giving Arthur a present — either a pat or a prize, without expecting anything either a kiss or a thank-you, in return.

Mrs. Goward will answer your problems personally. Address her care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope.

WHEN everything you attempt is a burden—when you are nervous and irritable—at your wit's end—try this medicine. It may be just what you need for extra energy. Mrs. Charles L. Cadmus of Trenton, New Jersey, says, "After doing just a little work I had to lie down. My mother-in-law recommended the Vegetable Compound. I can see a wonderful change now."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

OLD PEOPLE find way to keep breath wholesome

Halitosis (bad breath) quickly yields to Listerine, safe antiseptic and deodorant

Either because of stomach disturbances, food fermentation, or the wearing of false teeth, old people frequently have halitosis (bad breath). No wonder others consider them a nuisance.

But now Science has found that the regular use of Listerine will often overcome offensive mouth odors due to the fermentation of tiny bits of food on mouth, teeth, or dental plate surfaces.

This safe antiseptic and quick deodorant works quickly. It cleanses mouth, teeth, and gum surfaces. Halts fermentation and putrefaction, a major cause of odors, and then counteracts the odors themselves.

Try using Listerine every two or three days. See how much more wholesome it leaves your mouth. How it sweetens your breath. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo.

CASE TO BE CARRIED TO U.S. COURTS

court until they reached the nine judges in Washington who are the supreme arbiters of the law.

DESPERATE RACE

It was a desperate race against time that the lawyers were running when they met in Pope's office at Somerville, N. J., today for a three-hour conference.

Hauptmann will be executed Friday night unless some court stays the executioner's hand or Governor Harold G. Hoffman grants a reprieve.

HOFFMAN ABSENT

Hoffman stayed away from his office all day. He was in New York, reported to be working on business connected with the opening of the New Jersey legislature tomorrow. He will return tomorrow to face an Assembly and Senate containing many persons hostile to him because of his intervention in the Hauptmann case.

Threats were heard among New Jersey legislators that an investigation of the governor would be proposed if he grants a reprieve and there even was some talk of impeachment proceedings. Most of it came from Democrats like Assemblyman Crawford Jamieson who weeks ago threatened to investigate Hoffman's participation in the Hauptmann case from the time the governor paid his secret visit to the death house last October. Hoffman, a Republican, has a small majority in both houses. Sentiment among his opponents apparently had not become strong enough to bring out any concerted plan of action, but the galleries will be crowded at noon tomorrow for the convening of the legislature.

WPA Officials To Be Fired In Economy Move

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13—UP—Six administrative officers of the local WPA offices were notified by Bayly Hopkins, local WPA director, today that they will be dismissed January 20.

They are T. C. Meagher, special assistant to Hopkins and contact man with labor unions; W. B. Meara, special assistant; A. A. Dawley, in charge of re-assignment work; Edward Lewis, claims investigator; Erich Nielson, publicity agent and Frank Green, chief paymaster.

T. E. Ohl, head of the finance department has been given verbal notice that he will be dismissed as soon as a successor has been chosen.

Hopkins said the reduction was an economy move and that only the positions held by Ohl and Green will be re-filled.

The director said Green's place would be taken by Charles D. Sutton, who has been his assistant.

Bodies Of Six Recovered In Sea Disaster

ment stations were unable to approach the stripped hull.

The 28-mile sands of the Long-beach peninsula were strewn with wreckage and dotted with beach combers bent on salvage.

A lonely, stricken figure among the excited sightseers was Mrs. Frank Caldwell of Portland, who paced the beach throughout the night and day, searching for the body of her son, Radioman Frank M. Caldwell, Jr., and refusing offers of shelter made by beach residents.

BODIES IDENTIFIED

Identified bodies were: James McHenry, oiler, Philadelphia; Karl Bendixen, chief engineer, Bellevue, Wash.; Charles Ogan, third assistant engineer, San Pedro; Marian Perich, ship carpenter, Portland; and A. O. Meyer, boatsswain, Portland.

A routine inquiry by navigation officials was planned, but the investigation probably will be a formality and is not expected to shed much light on cause of the wreck.

STATE SENATOR FIGHT

The State Senator fight in Contra Costa promises to be a very interesting affair. Speculation is rife whether Editor Sharkey will retire on the laurels of his oil-control bill or whether he will again attempt to don the toga. Some of his friends are passing out the information from the corners of their mouths that he will soon sing his swan song. Recently an article appeared, which would indicate an inspired attempt to sound out sentiment in his behalf. I can well understand how the Senator's opponents would endeavor to whisper him out of the picture, but there is something that does not smell so fragrant surrounding the mysterious actions and words of his so-called friends. Can it possibly be that the quaint old Indian custom of a knife in the back is being used by the men with whom he has played the game of politics for so many moons?

In the meantime there are several sitting on the sidelines impatiently waiting to see what the Senator is going to do. Irregardless of his decision there is going to be a full list of entries for the job of lawmaker from these parts in the upper chamber of the legislature.

ALWAYS WILLING

The congressional contest also bids fair to be interesting. It is hardly likely that any Republican here or in Alameda county can muster up enough strength to wrest the nomination from Congressman Carter. The Democrats have a covetous eye, however, on Carter's seat and propose to give him a run. There has been some talk of Cliff Anglim taking on Carter, but personally it is my opinion that Cliff is too canny to offer himself as a sacrifice on the party altar. Be that as it may there are plenty of other Bourbons who will gladly essay the task.

CROP IS LARGE

There is already a bountiful supply of candidates for the Assembly post, which is so acceptably being filled by T. H. DeLap. Curiosity is rampant whether or not Tony is going to make a bid for the upper house or remain in the more populous chamber. If he has made any decision, he is sedulously keeping his own counsel. However, if he eventually decides to step into Sharkey's shoes, the crop of candidates will put to shame the recent mushroom phenomenon in evidence following one of our late seasonal deluges.

So all in all we should not be lacking in political excitement from now on through the merry month of May and up to and including the ides of November.

Extra Millions For State Aid Assured Chiefs

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 13—UP—An extra $2,000,000 will be advanced for state unemployment relief this month, state officials agreed today when assured by relief administration executives that supervision of direct aid to the unemployed will be a county responsibility by March 1.

The allocation makes a total of $4,000,000 provided this month from the $18,000,000 bienniel appropriation made by the last legislature to furnish the state's share of relief to unemployed during the current two year period.

Until this month the funds have been allocated at the rate of $2,000,000 a month. The extra $2,000,000 for January, relief officials said, is needed because of discontinuance of federal funds January 1.

SUIT LOOMS TO RECOVER MONEY PAID

empted to show that Klobis had turned over $1,000 to her with the intent of concealing the same and rendering it immune from levy.

The woman told an unusual story. She claimed that prior to the death of her husband Matthew, he converted his property into cash, realizing $1,000 from the sale of it. This money he placed in a box and later in the presence of his wife, turned it over to three friends, who in turn gave it to Mrs. Ivancich. The latter was instructed by her husband to keep the money for the benefit of the children. The transaction, it was made to appear, was for the purpose of avoiding probate costs. Mrs. Ivancich, under questioning admitted that she had turned the money over to Klobis, but had received it back from him again. She deposited it, however, under the name of Iwanch.

Mrs. Ivancich has been the recipient of relief for herself and children since 1928 and since that time has received the sum of $1166.12 from the county.

Silver Appeal Made By Senator

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—UP—Senator Pat McCarran, tonight appealed for a restoration of a free silver market in this county.

Commenting on a statement issued in New York by Handy & Harmon, silver dealers, designated as an agent of the treasury in carrying out the silver act, McCarran said their views were "a complete justification of my views expressed last year; namely, that the silver purchase act was delivered into the hands of its known enemies for execution."

He said re-establishment of a free silver market "will correct the present abuses under which a broker, dealer or semi-manufacturer agency of the treasury will assail the principles of the very law under which he operates in order that their execution be continued in hands favorable to treating silver as a commodity and not as a money."

Taxes Ordered Refunded By Court In New Deal Defeat

utes after the nine justices solemnly marched into the chamber at noon to announce these decisions. There was no mention of the test case involving the Tennessee Valley Authority, or other pending tests of major New Deal laws.

Today's decisions, while devoted to additional aspects of the unconstitutional farm program, cleared up only one point definitely: The disposition of the processing taxes in escrow. It added, however, to New Deal gloom over the prospect of having to pay back the billion dollars the AAA collected from processors and paid out to farmers who co-operated with its program.

LEGAL BATTLE SEEN

It was just such a situation as today's—the prospect of having to pay back tax money already spent—that caused Congress last August 24 to amend the AAA to provide that in the event of its unconstitutionality processors might sue for recovery of taxes only if they could show they had not passed the levies on to consumers in higher prices.

Lengthy and complicated litigation may be necessary before this point is decided. It appeared that processors must launch new suits seeking recovery of the taxes, at which time they may challenge the government's right to require proof as to who actually paid the taxes.

Complicating the farm situation still more is the fact that the Administration has recognized its outlawed obligation to farmers, thus definitely committing itself to paying them some $300,000,000. The AAA at first estimated this obligation at $600,000,000, but revised it after a check.

Breakfast Club Holds Election

Dr. J. M. Heady was named president of the Richmond Breakfast Club at a meeting of the organization held yesterday at Hotel Carquinez.

The club meets every Monday morning at 7:30 o'clock.

bridge from its inception.

WILL INVESTIGATE

The information contained in the letter was new to the Council, and before any action is taken the city attorney and city manager will investigate. The letter states that there are to be large naval and other developments on San Francisco bay in the near future, and the writer stated that he has been urging that Richmond areas be selected.

It appears, the letter continues, that a board will investigate the shallow waters south of Richmond to a line north of the Golden Gate ferry trestle. The statement is made that it is intended to use the trestle of the proposed Tomasini bridge to form a breakwater and it is also proposed to use Brooks island as a base.

HUGE DOCKS HINTED

Shipbuilding interests, the writer asserts, favor the Richmond, Albany, Berkeley area as their first choice, and it is hinted they also intend to construct huge docks. Before any final action is taken by the unnamed interests, they are waiting for Congress to pass the six per cent differential.

If such improvements are in the wind, the Santa Fe railroad is undoubtedly behind the move, as this corporation owns all of the waterfront land between Richmond and Berkeley. No such announcement has been made by the railroad.

Cicero Porter Funeral To Be Held In Colo.

The body of Cicero Porter, 82, of Richmond, who died Sunday morning at a Martinez hospital, will be sent to Pueblo, Colo., for funeral services.

Porter, a native of Missouri, lived with his son, Charles L. Porter of 829 Pennsylvania avenue for the past four years.

He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Rose Meins of Idaho and Mrs. Jise Leohardt of Colorado; three sons, Charles of Richmond and Lon and D. P. Porter of Colorado.

Wilson and Kratzer chapel has charge of arrangements.

votes could be found in either body to uphold another bonus veto. First indications that the Administration had capitulated came when Majority Leader Joe T. Robinson of the Senate predicted that some compromise measure acceptable to the White House could be agreed on.

COMPROMISE ORDERED

That compromise was offered today by Chairman Pat Harrison of the Senate Finance committee with Robinson's approval. Two hours after it had been introduced, the bill was in the finance committee, which questioned Acting Budget Director Daniel Bell, Veterans' Administrator Frank T. Hines and asked Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., to appear tomorrow at 10 a. m.

No protracted hearings will be held on the measure which Harrison indicated probably will be reported out tomorrow. The Senate is in recess until Thursday and no action in that chamber is expected until next week.

NO VETO IS SEEN

Reports that President Roosevelt would not veto the compromise measure circulated throughout Capitol Hill. Harrison declined to state Mr. Roosevelt's attitude, but he added significantly:

"I am confident that this bill will be enacted into law."

Both Harrison and Robinson voted last year to sustain President Roosevelt's veto of the Patman "inflationary" bonus bill. Both are up for re-election in 1936.
